

Collas Crill explains... Taking security over Jersey contract rights

December 2019

This guide is one in a series of 'Collas Crill explains...' in which we examine areas of Jersey law that frequently arise in practice.

Jersey is a popular place to establish an asset holding company because its companies legislation is modern, flexible and modelled on English companies legislation.

Where a Jersey company borrows money or participates in a group financing, the lender's security package will frequently involve taking security over Jersey contract rights.

This guide looks at the key things you need to know about taking security over Jersey contract rights, like shareholder loans made to a Jersey company.

Words in bold text are defined at the end of this guide.

Preliminary steps

A security taker should take the following preliminary steps before taking security over Jersey contract rights.

- Review the Contract to determine whether there are any terms that will adversely impact on its security interest over the Jersey contract rights (eg any prohibition on the creation of security) that need to be amended or disapplied.
- Agree a form of security notice and security acknowledgement with the other parties to the Contract.
- If the security giver is a Jersey company, carry out:
 - a companies registry search; and
 - an insolvency search,to make sure there is no evidence it is insolvent or subject to any insolvency proceedings.
- Search the security interests register to find out whether a financing statement has been registered for an existing security interest over the Contract. This search will not, however, reveal any security interest created under the Security Interests (Jersey) Law 1983 (the predecessor to the Law).

Security basics

The Law sets out a statutory framework for creating security interests over Jersey intangible movable assets, like Jersey contract rights.

Under the Law, a security interest is any interest in Jersey contract rights created under an agreement which secures the payment or performance of an obligation.

The key features of the Law relevant to creating a security interest over Jersey contract rights are as follows.

- Agreement: a security interest over Jersey contract rights may only be created by agreement between the security giver and security taker.
- Attachment:
 - Attachment is the process by which a security interest creates a proprietary right in Jersey contract rights.
 - Once a security interest attaches to Jersey contract rights, it becomes enforceable against the security giver.
 - The general position is that a security interest attaches to Jersey contract rights at the time all of the following conditions are satisfied:
 - value has been given in respect of the security agreement;
 - the security giver has rights in the Jersey contract rights or the power to grant rights in the Jersey contract rights to the security taker; and
 - the security agreement contains a description of the Jersey contract rights that is sufficient to allow them to be identified.
- Perfection:
 - Perfection is the process by which a security interest over Jersey contract rights becomes effective against third parties subject to the priority rules.
 - A security interest over Jersey contract rights is perfected when it has attached and any step required under the Law for it to be perfected has been taken.
 - A security interest over Jersey contract rights can only be perfected by the security taker registering a financing statement for that security interest on the security interests register.
 - A security interest over Jersey contract rights must remain continuously perfected to remain enforceable against third parties.

The security giver will normally be required by the security agreement or (where relevant) the credit agreement to deliver the following documents to the security taker:

- a certified copy of the Contract;
- a security notice to the each other party to the Contract from the security giver and security taker;
- a security acknowledgement from each other party to the Contract; and
- a consent to filing a financing statement.

Where the Contract has terms that adversely impact on the security taker's security interest over the Jersey contract rights, these will need to be amended or disapplied. If this is done in the security acknowledgement, it is vital that each of the security notice and security acknowledgment are agreed in advance and signed on the same day as the security agreement.

Registration

The Law establishes the security interests register which records details of security interests created over Jersey intangible movable property. It is kept by the Jersey registrar of companies and can be searched online by anyone.

The security taker may register details of (or any changes to) the security interest created over the Jersey contract rights by registering a financing statement. The financing statement will record in the security interests register details of the security taker, the security giver and the Jersey contract rights.

The maximum period for which a financing statement can be registered is 99 years and this is the period for which a finance statement is typically registered.

A security taker must register a financing statement relating to the security interest created over Jersey contract rights because, as mentioned above, it is the only way to perfect the security interest. It also:

- ensures that the security interest remains continuously perfected; and
- puts anyone who searches the security interests register on actual notice of its security interest over the Jersey contract rights.

Priority

The Law sets out the following priority rules that apply to a security interest created over Jersey contract rights.

- A perfected security interest has priority over an unperfected security interest over the Jersey contract rights.
- Where there is more than one perfected security interest over the Jersey contract rights, the security interest for which any of the following actions was first taken has priority:
 - a financing statement was registered; and

- the security interest was temporarily perfected under the Law.

- Where competing security interests over the Jersey contract rights are perfected by attachment, priority is determined by the order of attachment.

Enforcement

Remedies

If a security interest over Jersey contract rights becomes enforceable, the security taker may:

- sell the Jersey contract rights (including to itself) by auction, public tender or private sale;
- appropriate the Jersey contract rights;
- take control of the Jersey contract rights;
- exercise any of the security giver's rights in the Jersey contract rights; or
- instruct any person who has an obligation in relation to the Jersey contract rights to perform that obligation for the benefit of the security taker.

The Law allows the security agreement to include any other remedy as long as it does not conflict with the Law.

Process

The Law allows the security taker to enforce its security interest if:

- an event of default under the security agreement occurs; and
- it gives a notice to the security giver specifying the event of default.

If the security taker wants to appropriate or sell the Jersey contract rights, it must first give at least 14 days' written notice to the security giver and any interested party.

The security taker does not need to give notice if:

- the security giver or interested party agrees in writing to waive notice (which the security giver normally does in the security agreement);
- in the case of a sale of the Jersey contract rights:
 - the security taker believes on reasonable grounds that the Jersey contract rights will decline substantially in value if they are not disposed of within 14 days of the event of default; or

- the Jersey court orders for any other reason that notice need not be given; or
- the security taker exercises a remedy other than appropriation or sale.

Within 14 days of appropriating or selling Jersey contract rights, the security taker must give to the security giver and other parties with an interest in the Jersey contract rights a statement of account which shows (among other things) the net value of the Jersey contract rights (in the case of appropriation) or net sale proceeds (in the case of a sale).

If any surplus remains after the enforcement costs and secured obligations and have been paid, the surplus must be applied among the relevant parties in the order of priority stated in the Law.

Effect on other security interests

If the security taker sells or appropriates Jersey contract rights, any security interest that ranks after its security interest is automatically extinguished.

Duties

The security taker has the following duties to the security giver and any interested party on enforcing its security interest.

- Where it appropriates Jersey contract rights, it must take all commercially reasonable steps to determine the fair market value of the Jersey contract rights as at the time of appropriation.
- Where it sells Jersey contract rights, it must:
 - take all commercially reasonable steps to obtain fair market value for the Jersey contract rights at the time of sale;
and
 - enter into any sale contract on commercially reasonable terms.
- It must act in other respects in a commercially reasonable manner in relation to the appropriation or sale.

Insolvency of security giver

The Law states that the power of the security taker to appropriate, sell or otherwise act in relation to Jersey contract rights is not affected by:

- the security giver becoming insolvent; or
- its property becoming subject to insolvency proceedings in Jersey or elsewhere, as long as the security interest was perfected before the security giver became insolvent.

Terms used
