

Collas Crill contributes to leading text

July 2018

Collas Crill has once again collaborated with several major international law firms for the third edition of the multi-jurisdictional legal reference book, The Gambling Law Review.

Published by The Law Reviews, group partner Wayne Atkinson, who specialises in corporate and regulatory law, provided a detailed chapter reviewing the law around gambling in Alderney.

Targeted at general counsel, The Gambling Law Review provides a comparative and business-focused legal analysis of gambling law in over 25 jurisdictions worldwide.

Each chapter is written by a leading expert in the field examining current issues of concern in each jurisdiction and review recent activity and developments in the market.

Other firms who have contributed include Bird & Bird, Dentons and Paul Hastings.

Wayne said: "It is an honour to work with the Law Review again. Alderney is a major player in the international gaming industry and it is therefore important for Alderney's regime to be properly detailed in texts like these. Our being asked to contribute is a welcome acknowledgment of Collas Crill's pre-eminence in this field."

The Law Reviews at Law Business Research Limited said: "The Law Reviews is an essential information tool for private practitioners, in-house counsel, government agencies and financial institutions."

"Our expert panel's unique perspective on the global marketplace provides practical guidance for professionals engaged in cross-border work."
